

EPICOACH

UNLOCK YOUR POTENTIAL

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

David Newman Joins Epicoach as Partner

Bethesda, MD, White Plains, NY---David Newman has joined Epicoach, a leading firm providing career coaching and consultation services to executives and professionals, as a partner. Newman, who is a graduate of Rutgers University's Leadership Coaching for Organizational Performance—an International Coaching Federation Accredited Coach Training Program—is also an active board member at Adaptive Sports at Mount Snow in Vermont.

Previously, Newman served as Chief Operating Officer at Aurelius Capital, Managing Director/Head of Hedge Fund Consulting Services at Merrill Lynch, Managing Director of Spring Lake Consulting, Chief Operating Officer at MSD Capital, VP at Goldman Sachs, and Managing Director at Morgan Stanley & JPMorgan Chase.

He earned a B.S. at the London School of Economics & Political Science and is accredited by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales.

According to Bob Fleshner, founder of Epicoach, the pandemic has fueled his firm's growth. "We have seen how the new normal has dramatically affected employers and employees, and we wanted to respond to the evolving needs of leaders, who need to invest in talent, and professionals, who are seeking more flexibility. I'm confident that David Newman, a trusted, long-time associate, will help take Epicoach to the next level as we collaborate in the future."

Epicoach, based in Bethesda, MD, serves clients in the Washington, DC, area, the New York City metro area, and beyond.

"I am enthused about my latest venture as I partner with Bob Fleshner, who has built a premier coaching and consulting service," said Newman. "I believe my background presents a good fit for Epicoach and its core ethos—helping leaders and professionals unlock their potential for success in business and life."

Newman, who was raised in England, lives in White Plains, N.Y.
